Circulated to 108,000 homes and businesses by Hackney Council

Issue 410 11 September 2017

PARTY TIME

Dancers and performers from 23 groups took part in this year's Hackney Carnival on Sunday, 10 September

THIS year's Hackney Carnival was a real showstopper, brightening the borough's streets like a ray of tropical sunshine. Miraculously the rain held off for the parade of 23 carnival groups, who wore fabulous costumes, played booming beats and performed fantastic dance routines to entertain the 30,000 spectators.

Along the way, there was a minute's silence to honour those who died in the Grenfell Tower fire and those affected by recent hurricanes in the Caribbean. For the full story and more great pictures see pg 4 & 5.

Hackney Today is published by the London Borough of Hackney. It has a print run of 108,000 copies and is delivered free to every home and business in the borough. The Council uses it to communicate public service information to residents. It is published fortnightly in order to carry statutory advertising, such as planning and traffic notices, which is cheaper for the taxpayer than using another local paper. The law does not allow for statutory notices to be published solely online or in a less frequent publication.

The paper's official, door-to-door delivery is 91,665 copies per issue, Audit Bureau of Circulations (ABC)

Support for business

Meg Hillier MP, Len Maloney of JC Motors, and Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville handed in a petition to No10 over the revaluation

THE Council has launched a consultation on how to allocate £7.1million to support local firms whose Business Rates have increased due to Government reforms.

Under its proposals, the money will be targeted at the borough's most severely affected small and medium-sized businesses.

Certain types of businesses, such as betting shops, payday lenders and national chains, and empty properties, will be excluded. The extra funding follows a national revaluation of business premises.

New 'rateable values' were published in March and are now being used to set Business Rates. Because property prices have risen dramatically in Hackney in recent years, the borough experienced an average rateable value increase of 46 per cent, the largest in London and five times the England average.

Thousands of local businesses now face bills considerably higher than they were in 2016/17.

The Council is not involved in setting rateable values or Business Rates – these are set by the Valuation Office Agency and the Government.

Because the borough was so disproportionately affected, the Council called on the Government to offer more support for businesses.

This included a joint-campaign with the East End Trades Guild, which resulted in a petition with 10,500 signatures being handed in to Downing Street in March. The Chancellor subsequently announced the £300million Discretionary Relief Scheme in his spring Budget to help businesses facing rises. It covers 2017/18 to 2020/21 and councils must design their own scheme to distribute it. Hackney received £7.1million in total, and £4.1million is available in 2017/18.

The Council had been waiting for information from the Government about the new fund before proposing its local scheme

“Hackney Council will keep doing all it can to offer support and advice to our business community” for consultation with the business community.

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Planning, Business and Investment, said: “The Council's priority is to support the small and medium businesses which are at the heart of Hackney's diverse communities and the borough's unique character.

“Although this extra funding and the other support measures announced by the Chancellor is welcome, it is not enough and we know that many businesses will still face difficult months and years ahead. Hackney Council will keep doing all it can to offer support and advice to our business community, and make sure the call for a reasonable, fair and affordable rate system is heard.”

Under the Council's proposed scheme, relief will only be provided to businesses with a 2017/18 rateable value of £200,000 or less, and whose 2017/18 Business Rates bill, after exemptions and other reliefs, increased by 12.5 per cent or more. It is anticipated that 2,200 local businesses may qualify.

The Discretionary Relief Scheme was one of three measures announced by the Chancellor. The two others relate to businesses which have lost some, or all, of their Small Business Rate Relief, and pubs with a new rateable value of below £100,000. About 450 Hackney businesses and 120 pubs are expected to benefit.

Lido to re-open

London Fields Lido closed in April for extensive repairs to the pool, changing rooms and reception area. Inset: Mayor Glanville views the work

A REFURBISHED London Fields Lido is set to re-open on 30 September.

The lido, which will feature brand new changing rooms and reception area, closed in April after tiles started to crack and come away from the pool wall.

Tests carried out by industry specialists identified a problem with the screed layer between the pool tank and the render holding the tiles, and confirmed that all the tiles, screed and render would need to be removed and replaced.

The Council used the closure of the Lido as an opportunity to revamp the indoor changing rooms and main reception area.

The changing rooms will maintain separate male and female areas and provide space for indoor storage lockers, showers, mirrors and hair dryers. There will also be improved private changing cubicles and family and baby change facilities.

The work was delayed by difficulties removing the material beneath the tiles and digging out the slab. Diamond-tipped cutting equipment and a specialist excavator were used to finish the job, extra staff were brought in and the refurbishment is currently on schedule to be completed

Returning and new users will be able to enjoy better, more modern and accessible facilities when it re-opens by 30 September.

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability and Community Services, said: "I am delighted that returning and new users will be able to enjoy better, more modern and accessible facilities when the lido re-opens this month.

"I understand that people were disappointed that the lido had to close, and it is frustrating that some delays were encountered throughout the renovations.

"Delays are not uncommon with complicated building work, but we have been working very hard with the contractor to re-open the lido as quickly as possible.

"My priority is to ensure the works are completed to the highest standard possible, to provide a long-term, sustainable future for this important community asset."

Reshaping Shoreditch streets

THE Council is consulting on three schemes to improve streets and public spaces around Shoreditch.

They are part of a new approach which aims to create spaces that are safe and easy to walk or cycle in, reduce vehicle dependence, and improve air quality.

The Council is asking people who live, work or visit Shoreditch for:

- Ideas about how to turn a neglected alleyway between Hoxton Square and Bowling Green Walk into a welcoming, safe environment that encourages people to walk and cycle through it
- Feedback on a plan to close Garden Walk to through traffic to prevent cars and vans from using it as a rat run between Rivington Street and Great Eastern Street, making it safer for walking and cycling
- Suggestions for how New Inn Yard can be changed to improve the environment and make it easier to walk and cycle.

Suggest changes for New Inn Yard in Shoreditch

Cllr Feryal Demirci, Cabinet Member for Neighbourhoods Transport and Parks, said: "Creating an environment that will encourage more walking and cycling as well as improving air quality within the borough is a key part of Hackney's Transport Strategy.

"They will enhance the character of the area making it feel more secure – improving everyone's walking experience. We want to hear from people who use these spaces for their ideas on how they can be improved, and will be holding drop in events to speak to people in person."

Your chance to question the Mayor

RESIDENTS are being invited to ask the Mayor of Hackney about the issues that matter to them, as well as offer ideas and aspirations for the borough, at a public debate.

The first ever Hackney Mayor's Question Time will take place in the Town Hall Council Chamber on 2 October.

It's open to all residents and is an opportunity to discuss a wide range of topics about life in Hackney and the work of the Council.

Mayor Philip Glanville will be joined on stage by Dave Hill – Guardian columnist and Hackney resident – who will act as chairman, taking questions from the audience and posing some himself.

Mayor Glanville said: "I want to hear from people from across Hackney's diverse communities about the issues which matter most to them.

"It's so important that as a mayor, as a council, as residents and businesses, we have open and honest discussions; that the Council can explain its vision and work, and people can share their thoughts and ideas, so we can work together on solutions. Hopefully this new annual event will be a great forum for that, alongside our other engagement events and consultations."

The event will be broadcast live and also made available for the public to view afterwards.

The following morning, the Mayor will host a Twitter Question Time

Dave Hill, second from the right, is an experienced panel host where people can ask further questions on areas not covered on the night.

The event will run from 7pm to 9pm. Doors will open at 6pm. The debate is free and open to all residents, although numbers are limited. For more details and to register, visit:

FROM the Regent's Canal to Ridley Road, there was a festival atmosphere as Hackney Carnival brought the streets to life with performers displaying fabulous costumes, booming beats and on point dance routines for 30,000 spectators along the route.

When the procession entered Mare Street, the celebrations paused as carnival-goers observed a minute's silence for those who died in the Grenfell Tower fire and those affected by recent hurricanes in the Caribbean. As the 23 carnival groups danced past judges in Hackney Town Hall Square, there were big cheers for local groups such as Beeraahaar Sweet Combination and Gahu Dramatic Arts, and excitement as the first ever Carnival Elders bus, organised by St Joseph's Hospice, made an appearance.

Pax Nindi, Creative Director of Hackney Carnival said: "It's amazing how carnival is growing, especially with so many residents loving it and getting involved. The quality of the costumes, the colours are fantastic, the joy massive!" "The capital has another

Hackney Pride 365 aims to celebrate the borough's historic LGBTQI+ community every day of the year

DID YOU KNOW?

Hackney's first ever Pride in the Park picnic for LGBTQI+ families, friends and allies was a resounding success

Love is all around

Main: Rachel Duke and Lottie Poulton, with sons Frankie and Wilf and friends. Top left: The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and the Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Soraya Adejare, with Boudica Security staff. Clockwise from right: Children enjoyed the day and there was advice on hand about Hackney's fostering and adoption services and children's centres as well as gender issues

THE sun shone and ice creams melted as over 300 residents gathered together for Hackney's first ever Pride in the Park picnic.

Taking place on the late August Bank Holiday weekend, laughter filled the air as youngsters enjoyed a range of free activities including a mini bouncy castle, face painting and sports including badminton, football and relay games.

The event in Haggerston Park was aimed at LGBTQI+ families, their friends and allies to celebrate the many diverse types of family units in Hackney. It was organised by the Council's fostering and adoption service to promote these options among the LGBTQI+ community and staff were on hand to answer questions and hand out information to prospective carers.

A representative from Gendered Intelligence was also there to talk about gender diversity and offer information on trans youth programmes in London.

Rachel Duke, who attended the picnic with her partner Lottie and two sons Frankie and Wilf, said: "We really enjoyed the family picnic. It was a great chance for our young children to play and hang out in the park with lots of other LGBTQI+ families, it's good to see the Council backing this kind of inclusive event."

The Mayor of Hackney, Philip Glanville, and the Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Soraya Adejare came along to join in the celebrations.

The Mayor said: "It was great to see so many of Hackney's diverse families come together and celebrate over the bank holiday weekend. I'm proud that we can use Hackney's much loved outdoor spaces to play host to inclusive events like this, that support the borough's diverse communities and bring people together."

The Pride in the Park picnic is just one of the events organized as part of Hackney Pride 365, a community-led festival that celebrates the borough's historic, diverse and boundary-breaking LGBTQI+ community every day of the year.

Gardens on the right track

TV presenter Julia Bradbury, centre, helped to launch the Energy Gardens scheme for sites at Overground stations in the capital

FIVE new community gardens are to arrive at rail stations around Hackney, as research shows that urbanites with access to green spaces are significantly less likely to develop mental illness.

Hackney Wick, Hackney Central, Clapton, Haggerston and Hoxton Overground stations have been selected to receive their own patches of green, where members of the community will be invited to prune fruit bushes, water vegetable patches and even tend to beehives.

This innovative project is being run by the environmental regeneration charity Groundwork, in partnership with organic drinks company Honest.

“Green spaces can play an important role in busy urban communities”

Called Energy Gardens, new sites are planned across London's Overground network, aiming to provide therapeutic activities for passengers and residents across the city.

New research undertaken by the partnership shows that almost half of all Londoners (46 per cent) think that their daily life would be improved if they had easier access to green space and could spend more time outdoors. Forty per cent also said they would like to be able to grow their own herbs, fruit and vegetables. To that end, a successful community garden currently based at the Queen Elizabeth Olympic Park will soon move to a new location near Hackney Wick Overground station.

Designed by Groundwork, the Mobile Garden City has been growing food, providing free gardening activities and creating a welcoming oasis of green since 2015.

Ben Coles, Groundwork's director of communities and local partnerships, said: “Green spaces and the opportunity to do some gardening can play an incredibly important role in busy urban communities.

“The Energy Garden programme's focus on the rail network means we can provide even more opportunities for Londoners to get involved in all the benefits that gardening can bring.”

Resources will be available to support gardening groups over many years with training, support, plants and celebratory events.”

Charities collect surplus food

MORE local charities are set to benefit from a scheme that has already provided over 1,000 meals to community groups in the borough.

Over 5,000 charities and projects have so far benefited from an initiative run by Tesco and launched in the borough last year.

The Community Food Connection scheme allows groups to collect surplus food from their local store, including fruit and veg, meat and ready meals. An app allows staff to alert them to the surplus food that remains unsold at the end of each day.

Prompted by the scheme's success in the borough, Tesco is now due to expand it to their express stores in Hackney.

Jez Butwell, store director for Tesco in Hackney, said: “We are looking forward to forging more strong links with local charities and community groups. We want to support their efforts to help more vulnerable people in our community.”

So far, organisations including Hackney Caribbean Elderly Organisation and Pedro Youth Club have benefited from the scheme. To register, visit: www.fareshare.org.uk/fareshare-foodcloud

Discuss how to lead a greener lifestyle at the sustainability day

Make greener choices at Hackney's sustainability day

FROM the amount of electricity you use, the food you buy, to how you travel – have you thought about how your choices impact the world around you?

Visit Hackney's Sustainability Day to learn about leading a more environmentally-friendly lifestyle. Taking place in Hackney Town Hall

Square, on 30 September, between 11am and 4pm, attendees can visit advice stalls offering information on subjects such as recycling and growing your own food. There will be refreshments and activities for families, including a visit from a giant bumblebee, and councillors will be hosting a seminar to discuss how the borough can work together.

Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability and Community services, Cllr Jon Burke, said: “Hackney's Sustainability Day will give residents an opportunity to learn more about how they can contribute to an environmentally sustainable future for the borough and provide them with an opportunity to ask questions.”

Inspirational award

The Geffrye Museum, in Hoxton, hosts regular workshops and sessions for pupils and students every year

THE Geffrye Museum has been judged among the nation's top museums and galleries, when it comes to its educational programmes and facilities.

The museum of homes and domestic life, in Kingsland Road, was awarded The Sandford Award for Heritage Education this summer. It recognises both the work it has done with children over the years, and the role that learning will play in its forthcoming redevelopment.

The award judges said:

"The Geffrye Museum is going through an exciting time. Whether you visit with your class or take part in an outreach session with fascinating objects brought into your school for children to handle and discuss, you can be sure of a stimulating session that will deepen your children's learning and inspire them in enjoyable and engaging ways."

More than 8,000 school children take part in the Geffrye's workshops and sessions each year, on topics ranging from the Tudors to science, via art and storytelling.

"The Geffrye led the way with museum education in the 1930s and learning remains at the core of what we do today"

In January, the museum will close to the public for up to two years, in order to undertake an ambitious building project, including new learning spaces for an additional range of engagement programmes.

Sonia Solicari, the museum's Director, said: "The Geffrye led the way with museum education in the 1930s and learning remains at the core of everything we do today. Our redevelopment project will allow us to expand our provision even further, with inspiring new spaces for learning and discovery."

Ickburgh in tune with LSO project

STUDENTS with special educational needs, disabilities and autism from Ickburgh School, in Kenworthy Road, took part in a concert led by musicians from the London Symphony Orchestra (LSO) this summer.

Earlier sessions saw them exploring new instruments and composing their own music before they took part in the performance at LSO St. Luke's in Old Street, EC1.

Mark Withers, LSO music leader, said: "The joy of this moment is bringing young people with special needs, disabilities and autism into one place that is about excellent music. We make friends and we make excellent music together."

LSO music leader Mark Withers with Carrie Grant

The three-year project, funded by national charity Youth Music and supported by People's Postcode Lottery, allows the LSO to work with schools across East and South-East London to encourage young people with special needs, disabilities and autism to explore music both in and out-of-school, boosting their creative, personal and social development.

TV presenter and singer, Carrie Grant, is a Youth Music ambassador. After seeing the performance, she said: "It is so important that the challenges these young people face do not get in the way of their talent being nurtured. Too often the kind of wonderful talent we saw in evidence today goes unnoticed. It's so great that the LSO is working in schools with the support of Youth Music and players of People's Postcode Lottery to help these young people discover the joy of making music and develop their musical skills."

University tutors bolster primary pupils

PUTTING university students in the classroom with primary school pupils is boosting the achievements of both at one Hackney school.

Last September, students from Queen Mary University of London began tutoring

12 pupils at Kingsmead Primary School.

Over the course of the school year, the results of these dedicated maths and English sessions began to emerge. The pupils showed marked improvements in their confidence, while the university students were able to find further employment as tutors.

The project was the result of a partnership between Sanctuary Housing and Tutors United, a not-for-profit organisation that hires and trains university students in order to provide affordable tutoring to the primary school pupils who need it most.

Fariha Chowdhury has been tutoring two pupils: Teresa Smith from Year 5 and Kawesi Holland from Year 6. Fariha said: "The growing confidence and effort Teresa has put into her work has undoubtedly fuelled her academic success, while Kawesi now helps his peers with their work."

More Than Food

Until 13 Jan, Hackney Museum, 1 Reading Lane, E8 1GQ

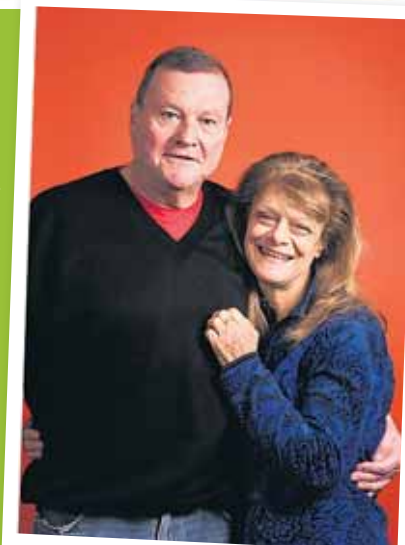

At the New Kingshold Community Centre, surplus food donations are helping to bring people together, help reduce waste and turn neighbours into friends.

The lunch club creates free and healthy meals for up to 50 residents from the Kingshold Estate and across Hackney every Thursday at 12.30pm. These residents are the subject of an exhibition hosted by Hackney Museum, which explores the impact the borough's first foodcycle hub has had on the local community.

More than Food features portraits of residents at the community hall by local photographer Jørn Tomter and also includes video interviews with those who took part. Each participant received a copy of their portrait to keep.

ART & EXHIBITIONS*PERMISSIBLE NOTATIONS OF
Until 16 Sept, Wed-Sat,
12noon-6pm

This is a collaborative project devised by art collective Fourthland, artist/filmmaker Rosalind Fowler, and people from across the world whose paths met on Wenlock Barn Estate in Hackney. They created a film and installation that focuses on a performance enacted in the public spaces of the estate, informed by Fourthland's nine-year engagement with people living there. Captured on 16mm film, the performance 'becomes a collectively produced constellation of moments, memories and histories that people carry with them; the estate is no longer just a place of residence, but a living archive of cultural inheritance'.

There will also be a performance and screening on the estate on 30 September, from 2pm to 6pm. Free. All ages. PEER, 97-99 Hoxton Street, N1 6QL. Info: 020 7739 8080; info@peeruk.org; www.peeruk.org/fourthlandrosalindfowler/

I'D RATHER BE SHOPPING
Until 20 Sept, Thurs-Sat,
12noon-6pm

Artist Louise Ashcroft's research trips to Westfield, Stratford revolved around marketing strategies used in fashion, retail and shopping culture. This exhibition includes narrow boat signs using phrases from fashion slogan T-shirts, redesigned 'happy' toys given away with fast food, and a performance tour of Westfield. Free. All ages. See The Clientele at Oslo Hackney!

FROM humble beginnings as an indie pop band in Hampshire in the early 1990s, The Clientele carved a career as cult favourites on both sides of the pond, largely through the still-bewitching debut album Suburban Light, before calling it a day in 2011. It was the reissue of said record in 2014 that gave them an unexpected US hit and led them to reconvene. This in turn has led to a new album 'Music For The Age Of Miracles'. Now a boutique tour is under way to promote it and Oslo Hackney is hosting the band ahead of the album's official release on 22 September. Tickets are at a premium, but for the lucky few, expect to see live performances of key tracks from 'Suburban Light' and 'Strange Geometry', as well as new material. For more information, visit: www.oslohackney.com/events/live-the-clientele/

Hackney Today is giving away a pair of tickets to The Clientele live at Oslo, Hackney Central, on 22 September, but hurry! The closing date is 15 September. London Design Festival: Maker Mile

16-24 September, various locations

THE London Design Festival has introduced 'design routes', through areas of the city that are particularly dense in creative industries. Hackney's 'maker mile' is one such area. The one-mile radius centring around Mare Street's intersection with The Regent's Canal is home to over 50 design studios, workshops and creative spaces. Jane Campbell, organiser of the Maker Mile route, said: "We want to celebrate the creativity and maker culture of the area, so we're inviting local designers and makers to participate in a late night opening on 18 September. If you work in the maker mile and want to open your space to the public for one night, get in touch."

In addition to the late night opening, some of the area's spaces will be running events and exhibitions throughout the festival. This includes 3D printing at the Taylor Hawkes' London Fields studio, prototypes and maquettes on display at Studio Trevelyan, and a sneak peak at the A/W colour trends at a joint installation by Unique Style Platform and Surface Matter.

If you want to be included in the maker mile design route, e-mail: jane@surfacematter.co.uk

Ceramics in the City

22-24 Sept, Geffrye Museum, E2 8EA

POTTERY was once pushed to the fringes of the art world, considered more of a pedestrian pursuit than a pure art. Then came Grayson Perry, we all went potty for pots and never looked back. Instead, we're looking forward to the annual 'Ceramics in the City' exhibition, which returns to the Geffrye Museum this month, to showcase 50 of the UK's most exciting ceramicists and give visitors a chance to buy their work directly. Expect everything from practical tableware to ornamental objects via crazy collectors' pieces.

Those in the know will be salivating at a list of exhibitors including Judit Esztergomi, Mizuyo Yamashita and Jessica Thorn. But forget the art elite. The beauty of this exhibition is – as always – its ability to showcase something for every budget and all tastes. 'Ceramics in the City' will be held at the Geffrye Museum from 22 to 24 September, from 10am to 5pm. There will be an opening evening on 21 September from 6pm to 8.30pm. HOMERTON Library opened its doors to emerging talent for an evening of literary inspired music and spoken word, performed for, and by, young people.

Youth volunteering project Positive Futures London teamed up with the Council and local organisations to host Insightful Minds, aimed at encouraging more young people to use the library.

Acts which took part on 23 August included Twin Two, Phenomenal K, and young people from The Concorde Centre.

The idea for the event came from volunteer Shinelle Walker, 19, from Hackney. She said: "I'm really pleased with how Insightful Minds went.

"Volunteering has given me the confidence needed to take pride in the work that I do. I absolutely recommend volunteering for youths and young people my age."

Cllr Jon Burke, Cabinet Member for Energy, Sustainability and Community Services, said: "We are proud that Hackney's Libraries can take part in valuable

News in brief

Volunteer to inspire young men

ENTHUSIASTIC male volunteers from all walks of life are needed to take part in an inspirational careers event aimed at the next generation of Hackney's young men.

Your insights can help young men

Those who live, work, have attended school, or have a life connection with the borough, are eligible to apply. Volunteers will be asked to give insights into their chosen career paths, talking about real life experiences, including the successes and failures that have helped them grow and achieve. The event will take place on 18 October, at Young Hackney's Forest Road Hub, from 12noon-3.30pm. The closing date for applications is 4 October. Design murals for road bridge

A ROAD bridge in Mabley Green is to be redecorated as part of an ambitious new art project.

Local young people are being invited to help design and create a large mural which will cover the walls of an area known as 'the undercroft', and take its inspiration from surrounding wildlife. The project is funded by Sanctuary Housing. Workshops will take place between now and February next year, hosted at venues including Kingsmead

Primary School and Daubeney Children's Centre. For more info and to get involved, e-mail: admin@ecoactive.org.uk; or call: 020 8510 0113.

Youngsters from Gascoyne and Morningside youth clubs outside their pop-up New Generation Café in Well Street

Pop-up café bridges generation gap

IT'S not often you get served a slice of community cohesion with your mid-morning cake, but one Well Street café brought young and old together.

Twenty-four youngsters from Gascoyne and Morningside youth clubs took over NuDawn café on 31 August and 1 September, raising close to £600 for good causes.

The young people, aged between seven and 14, have been running a successful stall at Well Street's Teenage Market since the end of last year.

Setting their sights higher, they approached Kevin Jones, from NuDawn, for help and the idea for the New Generation Café took shape.

The young people served healthy smoothies, cocktail juices, cakes, teas, coffees and savoury dishes to customers, supervised by youth workers, as well as trained staff.

Nicolette Nixon, from Morningside Youth Club, said: "This was a unique opportunity. It enabled them to acquire business and enterprise skills, engage positively with members of the community and the public at large."

"I never thought that I'd be able to just speak to people I didn't know," agreed one young girl who had been placed in charge of PR duties, talking to passersby and encouraging them to come in for cake.

"It's been the best day ever," she added.

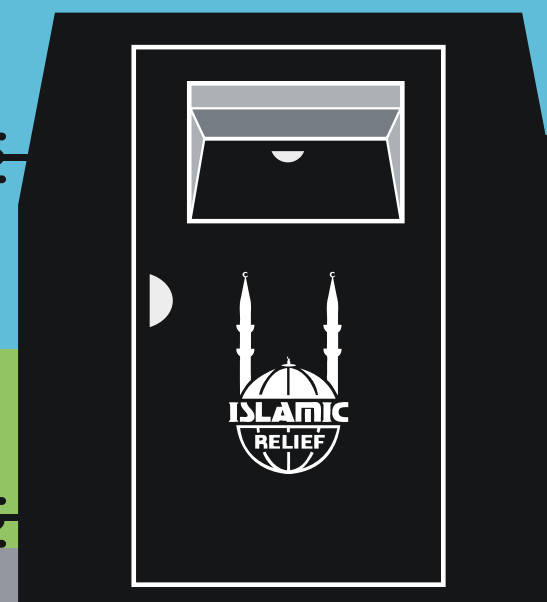

You might not love your old clothes any more, but someone else might.

So instead of throwing them in the bin, use our textile banks.

We even want things that can't be reused like worn out socks, tatty clothes and old bed sheets. 70% of items are sold to raise money for good causes. Everything else is shredded and turned into new items like cloths and blankets.

There are over 100 banks across Hackney.

Children from Hackney Ark with friends, family members, physios and their 'sidekicks' at the Superheroes Series paratriathlon in Windsor

Sports superheroes

CHILDREN from Hackney Ark physio unit at Homerton hospital took part in the Superhero Series paratriathlon at Dorney Lake, Windsor.

The event, held on 19 August, was the brainchild of Paralympian track and field athlete Sophie Warner, who has created a series of sporting events where people with all types of disabilities can come together and compete alongside like-minded individuals, who face similar daily experiences and challenges.

Over the past four months, the hospital's physio team has worked with the young people, engaging them in intensive strength, fitness and functional training programmes tailored to their needs so they could take part.

Many of the young people travelled to the event in team coaches thanks to the support of local charity 'Steps for Smiles', which is run by Gemma Austin-Popat, the mother of one of the participants.

Children dressed up as superheroes took part alongside friends, family members and physios

In total, 11 children from Hackney took part, dressing up as superheroes alongside friends, family members, and physios.

They swam, cycled, ran or propelled in the races independently, in specialist equipment, or with help from their superhero sidekicks.

Arlo, aged six, even secured a place in a celebrity team and took part in the event alongside Paralympic gold medallist, Kadeena Cox. The youngsters all received medals for their efforts.

Hackney Ark is a centre for children and young people with disability and special educational needs at Homerton hospital.

News in brief

Families dive in for free swims

LOCAL families have been making a splash at Kings Hall Leisure Centre this summer thanks to two weeks of free swimming lessons. The family sessions, which ran from 24 July to 4 August, enabled residents to gain confidence in deep water and put their swimming skills to the test, taking part in games such as water polo.

There were a total of 1,050 visits across the two-week period and more than 50 children improved from beginners to confident swimmers. More than 40 people booked onto holiday crash courses once the free family swimming sessions came to an end, including Grace Ajibola, whose three daughters took part. She said: "As beginners it helped them love swimming. To be in the water for a longer amount of time motivated them to come back."

Ahmed Patel, who brought along his three sons, added: "For my children it built their confidence a lot."

"It gave them the opportunity to go in the big pool for the first time, which was great for them. It was a really positive experience."

For more information on swimming lessons, contact King's Hall Leisure Centre, on e-mail: kingshall@gll.org; or call: 020 8985 2158.

Help improve mental health

THRIVE LDN is looking for residents' input to improve mental health and wellbeing in Hackney.

The citywide 'movement' was launched by the Mayor of London in July to improve the health and happiness of the capital's residents.

It is hosting a 'community conversation' event in Hackney for anyone interested in discussing how the Council, schools, employers, the NHS and residents can work together to promote wellbeing in Hackney. Free food and drink will be provided. The event takes place from 6pm-8pm, on 20 September, at St Joseph's Hospice, Mare Street. RSVP online at: bit.ly/ThriveHackney

Homerton hospital site to go smoke free

THE trust which runs Homerton hospital is planning to move towards a total smoking ban on site by the end of this year.

The ban is to be introduced in phases, beginning with staff no longer being allowed to smoke in the hospital grounds from next month – in line with the nationwide

Stoptober campaign to encourage people to quit.

Andreena Walton, the trust's smoking adviser, said: "At the end of the year, the remaining smoking shelters will come down and anyone wishing to smoke will have to do so off site. We will continue to encourage people to give up smoking."

Trust chief nurse, Sheila Adam, added: "It is right and proper that we should be discouraging smoking on NHS sites, but at the same time we propose offering nicotine patches and support to patients who are smokers while in hospital."

The trust has published an engagement document asking for views and comments from staff, patients and the public about the plan, which can be reviewed on its website. To view the engagement document visit: www.homerton.nhs.uk/smokefree. For help and advice to stop smoking, e-mail: smokefree@homerton.nhs.uk; or call: 020 8510 7248.

A healthy eating programme from Shoreditch Trust

www.shoreditchtrust.org.uk

SHOREDITCH Trust's Food for Life Programme works with members of the community to encourage affordable healthy eating, cooking skills and food knowledge. This week's recipe was devised in partnership with students from Inspired Directions School, who took part in a year-long cooking programme run by the trust.

Cuts of meat like the leg of lamb used here are generally cheaper and can be cooked on a low heat for several hours. The leg is generally lower in fat than other parts of the animal, and lamb is generally lower in fat than other red meats such as beef. Lamb is an excellent source of protein and vitamin B12. As with all meat, lamb should be eaten in moderation as part of a balanced diet. Here it is paired with crunchy lettuce and cabbage, wholemeal flatbreads and oranges.

Cooking time
3-4 hours

Ingredients

- 2 kg leg (or shoulder) of lamb
- 1 head garlic
- 1 tablespoon olive oil
- 1 tablespoon pomegranate molasses.
- 3-4 shallots

Method

- Pre-heat the oven as high as it will go
- Peel the garlic cloves. Make small cross-shaped cuts in the surface of the lamb and insert a clove of garlic in each hole. Place the lamb in a deep-sided roasting tin
- Peel the shallots and roughly slice in half. Toss in the olive oil and pomegranate molasses and arrange around the leg of lamb
- Cover with tin foil, place the tray in the oven and immediately turn the heat down to 160°. Cook for 3-4 hours, checking the shallots are not burning (these can be removed from the

To serve

- Bunch of mint
- 2 oranges
- 1 head iceberg or gem lettuce
- 1 head red cabbage, thinly sliced
- Wholemeal flatbreads, Greek yogurt
- Toasted pumpkin seeds to sprinkle on top (optional).

roasting dish at any time). The lamb is cooked when you can pull the meat apart with two forks. Leave the meat to stand for 15 minutes and prepare the salad and garnishes

- Thinly slice the red cabbage and tear the lettuce in to chunks to cover the base of a big dish or plate. Slice the oranges and arrange around the edge of the dish. Tear the meat from the bone using two forks and scatter over the bed of lettuce with the shallots. Garnish with sprigs of mint and serve with wholemeal flatbreads, Greek yogurt and chopped mint.

Have your say on transport in Hackney and you could win £100

THE Council wants to find out how residents get to work as part of a borough-wide survey to encourage greener travel.

Those who take part in the survey are in with a chance to win a £100 cash prize.

The survey will help the Council better understand how people travel to work; what would encourage people in Hackney to walk and cycle more; or reduce their reliance on a car.

It also aims to understand what the Council is doing well, and where it could improve services in terms of travel.

To take part in the survey, visit: consultation.hackney.gov.uk

For more information, e-mail: movegreener@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 1365.

The Mayor and councillors

Councillors are elected by residents and serve for four years. The last borough-wide elections took place in May 2014.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee Council services.

They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues of concern. Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – see map below.

MAYOR PHILIP GLANVILLE

Hackney's executive Mayor Philip Glanville, was directly elected by the borough in September 2016. He is the political leader of the Council, overseeing the budget and all Council services. The Mayor holds monthly casework surgeries in the Town Hall. To book an appointment, email: mayor@hackney.gov.uk; or call: 020 8356 3269. Residents are first encouraged to contact their ward councillor. Civic and ceremonial duties are undertaken by the Speaker of Hackney who is chosen annually from the borough's 57 councillors. The current Speaker is Cllr Soraya Adejare.
